8) “Reflecting on India's Dark Days” - Commemorated 49th Anniversary of Emergency on June 26

Chief Guest: Shri Shivraj Singh Chouhan

Union Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan graces Conclave on 49 Anniversary Emergency organised by Centre for Narendra Modi Studies

"Those who claim to safeguard the Constitution and parade it around have no right to touch it after what they did with the Constitution in 1975," said Shivraj Singh Chouhan, Union Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development, as he graced the conclave titled “Reflecting on India's Dark Days,” organised by the Centre for Narendra Modi Studies (NaMo Kendra- CNMS) at the India International Center, New Delhi, to commemorate the 49th anniversary of the Emergency.

In his address, Chouhan highlighted the resilience of Indian democracy and the valuable lessons learned from this dark chapter in history. "Dictatorship runs in Congress' DNA. They wanted autocracy. Three judges were demoted and one judge was promoted to pass their (Congress') rulings. The elections were cancelled and Indira Gandhi ji won through the misuse of government and the administration," Chouhan said.

While sharing his personal experiences, he added, "During the Emergency, I was also arrested and sent to jail and beaten with sticks. I was only 17 years old at that time. I was beaten ruthlessly while in custody, and I still feel the effects of that torture. The physical and emotional scars from that period remain with me to this day." He also recounted a deeply personal loss, saying, "One of the most painful memories for me is that when my grandmother died, she couldn't see me because I was imprisoned during the Emergency."

"It was the height of atrocities those days. The entire country was turned into a jail," he said.

The imposition of Emergency by the then Congress government was "indeed a dark chapter" in the country's history, Chouhan said while addressing a conclave organised by Centre for Narendra Modi Studies to deliberate on the period between 1975 and 1977.

The then Congress government-imposed Emergency, "ripping the Constitution to shreds", to hold on to power after then Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's election was set aside by the Allahabad High Court, the Union Agriculture Minister said.

"Indira Gandhi had won the election by misusing power. But she didn't quit and instead imposed Emergency. The Constitution was ripped to shreds. All fundamental rights were suspended. Provisions under the Maintenance of Internal Security Act (MISA) were made more draconian," he said.

Chouhan recalled how people were put in jails across the country during the Emergency period for protesting against the government and slammed the Congress, alleging, "All these things they did just to hold on to power. Dictatorship is in the DNA of the Congress."

"Today they talk about the Constitution but they do not have the right to even touch the Constitution for what they did (during Emergency),” he added.

“During the Emergency, Indira Gandhi committed inhuman atrocities on the people, who were assaulted and electrocuted. Nobody had imagined that in independent India, people would be tortured in such a way. June 25 was the darkest day in the history of India's democracy. Even 16-17-year-old kids were put behind bars. Congress is working with the same mindset even today,” he recalled.

"When I was released from jail and started working for the BJP, I rented a bicycle and travelled from one village to another, delivered lectures to gatherings of people without a microphone," recounted Shivraj Singh Chouhan. "Initially, we were afraid, but gradually, our fear diminished. We had no money to contest elections, so we appealed to the people for support."

"The people supported us wholeheartedly. With their help, we managed to rent a jeep and continue our campaign in those challenging times," he said.

The conclave began with a tribute to Jayaprakash Narayan, followed by inaugural remarks from Professor Jasim Mohammad, Chairman of the Centre for Narendra Modi Studies who emphasized the necessity of educating the youth about the Emergency and its long-term effects on the nation.

“Just to cling to power, the Congress Government during the Emergency ignored every democratic principle and turned the nation into a jail. Anyone who disagreed with them was tortured and harassed. Socially regressive policies were used to target the weakest sections of society. These dark days showed how power-hungry leaders could abuse their authority and harm the people. It's important for everyone especially youth of India to remember this period and learn from it to protect our democracy. We must ensure such misuse of power never happens again, and continue to stand up for the rights and freedoms of every citizen,” he said

Professor Jasim Mohammad informed that the Centre for Narendra Modi Studies will continue to organize conferences, workshops, seminars, and symposiums on the theme "Dark Emergency" throughout 2024-2025 in schools, colleges, and universities.

“The aim to conduct such conferences in educational institutes is to address the curiosity and questions of the youth of India who want to know more about the Emergency and its impact on the nation. Many young people wonder whether the Emergency was justified and necessary, and what lessons can be learned from it,” he said

He said that centre for Narendra Modi studies extensive programs in educational institutes will provide the youth an opportunity to hear from the experts and the eyewitnesses, and to engage in a dialogue with them. The long will also showcase the stories of courage and resilience of the ordinary citizens, who fought for their rights and dignity during the Emergency.

Guest of Honour Jatinder Kumar from the USA, who played a significant role abroad in conveying the plight of the Indian people to world leaders during the Emergency and who strongly organised campaigns against the Emergency delivered an impactful address. "During the Emergency, RSS members worked tirelessly to highlight the trauma and suffering faced by the people of India, informed other country leaders about the atrocities being committed by the Indira Gandhi Government," he said. Jatinder Kumar emphasized, "RSS is the organization that saved democracy in India. They fought relentlessly for democratic values and stood firmly against the Emergency,".

“After the imposition of Emergency in June, 1975, I along with some other friends in the USA founded Indians for Democracy (IFD). In the United States and U.K. frequent marches and demonstrations were held in front of the Indian Embassy and Consulates. We also confronted Indian government leaders and officials about the excessive repression caused by the Indian government and countered the propaganda by the Indian missions abroad that in India there was not much opposition to the Emergency,” he recalled.

"At that time, I had an Indian passport, but it was cancelled, and arrest warrants were issued against me due to our activities against the Emergency," he said.

“In the UK, Dr. Swamy and RSS workers founded Friends of India Society International (FISI). Then he came to the USA where we also started a FISI Chapter. He was FISI's first President and I was the second President. Soon we also had FISI Chapters in Canada, Germany, Holland, Japan, Hong Kong and Kenya where FISI carried out a strong campaign against Mrs. Gandhi's dictatorship. Whenever any Indian government official would visit any country and try to defend the Emergency, we would make them very uncomfortable and they would go back without any success. There is no doubt that the RSS movement in India and abroad had exerted a lot of pressure on the Indian Government,” he said, adding that, “As a part of our campaign against Emergency, we used to meet U.S. Congressmen and Senators to brief them about the excessive repressions of Indians' civil rights by the Indian government,”

Shri Ram Bahadur Rai, in his presidential address, stated, "Imposing the Emergency was a murder of democracy and it was completely unnecessary. The actions taken during that period were unjustifiable." He urged people to pursue legal action against the Indira Gandhi family for their actions during that dark period, stating, "In today's times, people should file cases against the Indira Gandhi family in the Supreme Court for what they did during the Emergency period."

Ram Bahadur Rai also quoted K Vikram Rao who recalled his jail days, "Today some incidents of 50 years ago come to mind. Especially the one in Baroda jail. A reporter asked me during my court appearance that which thing I remember and which I miss. I replied that I cannot hear the telephone ring in the jail, which hurts me a lot. I also do not get newspapers. But this shortcoming gradually disappeared when a young man used to deliver a bundle of newspapers to Baroda jail every day and the jailer sahab would become kind. Later I came to know that this agile young man was a volunteer named Narendra Damodar Das Modi,".

The conclave also featured a presentation of books and mementos to the esteemed guests, acknowledging their valuable contributions to the discourse on the Emergency.

Other distinguished guests of honour at the conclave including Prof. Raj Kumar Bhatia, former President of ABVP in 1975, who shared his experiences of student activism during the Emergency, emphasizing the role of youth in defending democracy. He emphasized the resilience and bravery shown by the people of India during that period. "The courage and determination of the youth were truly inspiring. We faced arrests, beatings, and unimaginable hardships, but we stood firm in our belief that democracy must prevail."

Bhatia urged today's youth to understand the sacrifices made by their predecessors. "The lessons learned from the Emergency are invaluable. It is the duty of the younger generation to keep the flame of democracy burning bright and ensure that such dark times never return."

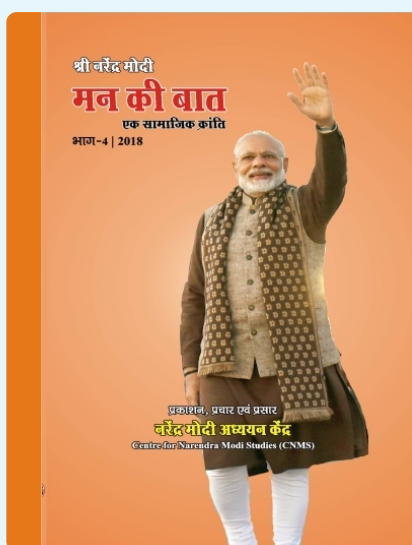

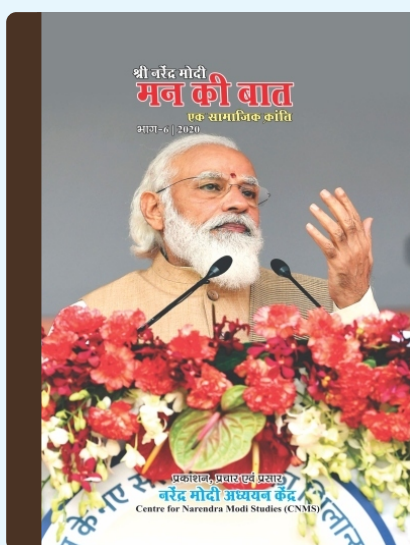

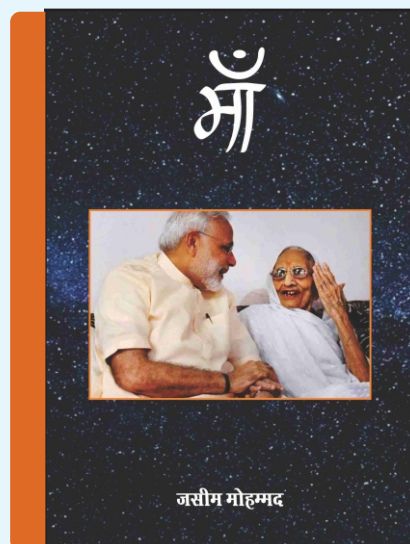

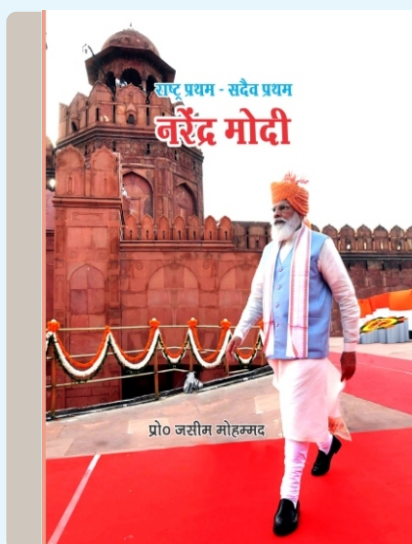

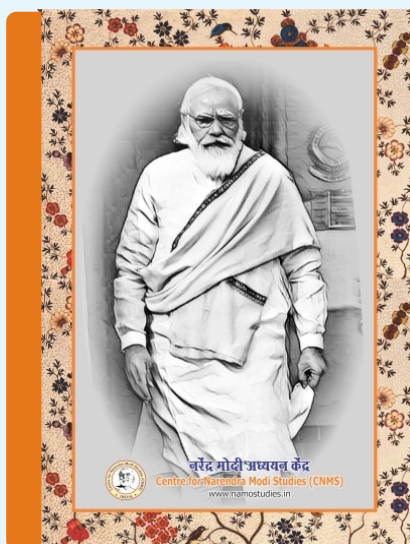

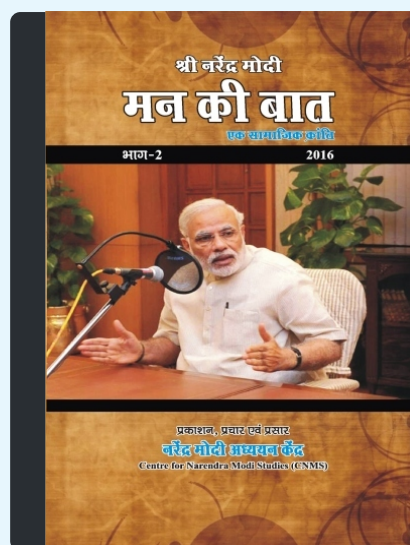

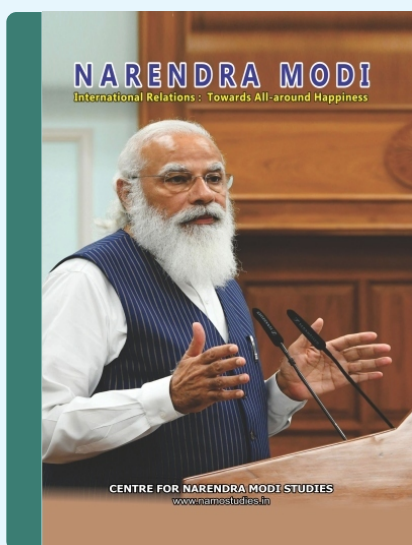

Rajendra Agrawal, former Member of Parliament who was also arrested during Emergency, spoke about the need for collective memory and education on historical events like the Emergency to prevent the repetition of such dark times and to strengthen democratic institutions.

He stressed the importance of collective memory and education to prevent the repetition of such dark times. Agrawal highlighted the significance of honouring the courage and resistance of those who stood against tyranny. "The stories of ordinary citizens who fought for their rights and dignity during the Emergency must be told and retold. Educating the public, especially the youth, about these events will instil a sense of responsibility and vigilance."

The programme was conducted by Rakesh Singh, and concluded with a Vote of Thanks by Hari Shankar Singh.
